We are now in the 2011 National Electrical Code

As many of you know, the 2011 edition of the NC Electrical Code was approved by the Building Code Council and the Office of Administrative Hearing, but then referred to legislative review. In accordance with General Statute 150B, it then does not go into effect until after 30 legislative days or the end of the legislative session unless a bill is drafted to otherwise address the code. This legislative session ended on July 3rd, 2012.

Due to the flurry of last minute changes to many bills in the closing hours of the session, our office could not confirm that a change was not implemented until the text of all changes appeared on-line.

Since it appears that no bill included it, the 2011 NC Electrical Code went into effect on Tuesday, July 3rd, 2012.

All permits acquired after AP# 209343 will be inspected by the 2011 NEC.

Found this week in Forsyth County, Do we still need inspections? It appears so!
